To whom it may concern

Dear Sirs,

This letter is my personal reference for Milen Georgiev. Until recently, I have been Milen's immediate supervisor for several years. I found him to be consistently responsible and undertaking all assignments with desire and dedication.

Over the years Milen has worked on various projects. He was flexible while performing different roles and has improved his skills and qualities. He was motivated and interested in learning, consistent in striving for better performance and development. In addition, he was always eager to take on more responsibilities.

Milen is a good person and a team player. He is always willing to offer his assistance and innovative ideas.

I am confident that, based on Milen's attitude, expertise and experience gained from his work, he will be a strong asset to many companies.
